Constant Reader

Twain, in the scarlet cap and gown of Oxford, was very brilliant. He related many amusing memories of his journalistic life in Virginia City. "A temperance lecturer once came to Virginia City," he said, "and in his lecture he cited the case of a young Nevadan who had died from the effects of a half-pint of brandy.

"The case was a well-known one, but it had been a pint of whisky, not a half-pint of brandy, that had killed the youth; and consequently I, as 'Answers to Correspondents' man on the Enterprise, wasn't astonished when I got this letter the the day after the lecture

'To settle a bet, please state in your valuable paper whether young man referred to in last night's temperance lecture drank half a pint of brandy or however, may now be said on these a pint of whisky.--Constant Reader.' "My reply to this was:

What He Wanted.

"Laura," said George with an eager restless yearning in his gaze, "may

"Darling," he whispered-and the wild, imploring look on his face thrilled her to the inmost depths of her being-"I wish you would sit on the other knee a while. The Mind That Excels

Col. George Harvey, the young pub lisher and writer, praised in a recent address in New York the country mind. "Even in wrong and ignoble things," said Col. Harvey, smiling, "even in driving hard bargains, the country mind excels that of the city. I recall a dialogue that I once heard in the general store of my native Peacham. What Wall street sharp could have driven such a bargain as the old Vermont ruralist achieved in this dialogue?" And Col. Harvey, with really excellent mimicry, repeated:

His Longest Engagement.-At the Army and Navy club in Washington one evening a group of officers, most of them young men, were swapping stories of various engagements during the war with Spain and the subse quent troubles in the Philippines.

Among the silent listeners was one grizzled veteran, a naval commander of national renown. It must have occurred to one of the young men that it was peculiarly ludicrous that officers not long out of the academies should be holding forth with respect to their exploits, while this old fellow sat silent in a corner. So turning to the veteran, one of the young officers blithely asked:

"What is the longest engagement you ever participated in, admiral?" "It lasted three years," said the old chap, without a suspicion of a smile, "and worst of all, the young woman

MONSTER LINERS

Five Thousand Persons.

Twelve thousand tons represent the increase in size of the two mammoth iners, Olympic and Titanic, now being built by Messrs. Harland & Wolff, Belfast, for the White Star company, over the leviathan Cunarder, Mauretania and Lusitania. The tonnage of each of these is 33,000 tons; that of each of the new White Star boats is to be 45,000 tons, and possibly more. Among the Belfast shipyard workmen these great vessels have been known for months past as the mystery ships, because of the extraordinary precautions which have been taken to prevent their dimensions and design becoming public property. The new steamers will be completed about the end of next year, and will go on the Southampton-New York service in the following spring. They are to be about 840 feet long, with a beam of 90 feet, and New York, sole agents for the United the boat deck will be more than 60 feet above the water.

Neither the Olympic nor the Titanic will be high-power boats, nor are their cold cure. It worked splendidly. The lines designed for great speed. Twenty-one knots being the average aimed at, as against the twenty-five of the Cunarders. An immense amount of space, which in fast boats is devoted to machinery, will thus be saved for cabin accommodation. The carrying capacity of the great boats will exceed that of any affeat today by at least one-third. Each steamship will carry, under normal conditions, more than

The steamers are not only designed to eclipse every thing else as yet achieved in the passenger shipbuilding as regards the size, but in their novelty of equipment as well. There will be a larger entrance hall, a spacious dining room, smoking room, library, wemen's parlor grill, and lounging rooms, elaborately furnished to the last de-

One of the upper decks is to be completely inclosed to serve as a ballroom or skating rink. By day this inclosure may be used as a sun parlor, and promenade. It will be large enough to accommodate several hundred passengers. In planning the cabins of the new liners, the luxuries of the most up-to-date hotels have been kept in sight, and even improved upon. These boats will offer not only extended suites of rooms, but complete flats, which will make it possible to cross the Atlantic while enjoying all the privacy of one's own home.

The Olympic and Titanic will be the first steamers to offer cabins with private shower baths attached. In addition, there will be a great swimming bath aboard both the Olympic and the Titanic, enough to permit of di ing. A gymnasium, the largest and most completely equipped affoat, will be found on each of the new boats. The main dining saloon, which will seat more than 600 passengers, will be the largest single cabin on the ship, and in its furnishing and decoration the most elaborate. Should a guest tire of this apartment in the week he is at sea, he can wander from one cafe to another enjoying practically as much variety as he might ashore.

A veranda cafe will be built on one of the upper decks far astern, looking out over the sea, and about fifty fee above the water. I understand that you will lend money at six per cent., but you require a certain amount of this money to be left with you and not to be checked out. I am a customer of your bank, but I have never had to borrow any money from you, and I don't know exactly how you work such things. My Dear Sir: In reply to your letter, will say that we would be very glad to let you have fifty dollars ($50) per bale on this cotton, and would charge you only 6 per cent interest. If you need to use every dollar of this money, it will be to your credit and you have a perfect right to check it out. You are a customer of our Bank, and this entitles you to call on us for any accommodation you might need and gives you a guarantee that you will have our aid and help in any reasonable banking transaction. I want to say 'his, that we will let any one who is a customer of The National Union Bank, whether he has one dollar to his credit or whether he has one thousand dollars to his credit, have fifty dollars ($50) on every good bale of cotton that he wants to store in a warehouse in Rock Hill, and will charge him only six per cent. interest, even though he takes every dollar of it out. We expect to accommodate the farmers whenever we are able to do so, and especially a customer of The National Union Bank.

I wish that I were in a position to give you advice that would be worth anything in regard to holding your cotton, but I am not. It is almost impossible for any one to say as to whether it is a good thing or a bad thing to hold at the present prices. Yours truly,
